Tribute of Respect.

Before the adjournment of the Court of Commmon Pleas on Saturday, Mr. A. S. Douglass in a few well-chosen words, and on behalf of the members of the Winnsboro bar, offered the following resolutions in regard to the death of the late Col. James H. Rion. Messrs. J. E. McDonald, H. N. Obcar and Jas. G. McCants made some remarks on the resolutions, after which Judge Pressley ordered that they be entered on the minutes of the Court. Since the last term of the Circuit

Court for Fairfield, the bar of Winnsboro has been called to mourn the death of their oldest and most distinguished member--one whose life was devoted to the practice of the profession, and devoted also to the practice of those principles which it is the highest duty of the lawyer to maintain. In a career of thirty-two years Neely, charged with committing a of active practice at this bar, James H.
